Stroll along the 800-metre boardwalk, perhaps catching sight of the shore and migrating birds that make the dune their habitat. The interpretive centre has educational and interactive displays describing the dunes. Heading to PEI, cross the 13km long Confederation Bridge. The day isn't over yet! The Hopewell Rocks on the Bay of Fundy are rock formations caused by tidal erosion. The Bay of Fundy has the highest tides in the world because of an unusual combination of resonance (or seiche) and the shape of the bay.

DAY 17: Fredericton to Rivière-du-Loup, QC

Kings Landing is a living history museum with original buildings from the period of 1820-1920. A costumed interpreter will explain the many different structures and the various jobs that contribute to running the village during that era. Their philosophy is "tell them and they'll forget. Show them and they'll remember. Involve them and they'll understand". On the way to Rivière du Loup, stop in Hartland, NB to see the world's longest covered bridge.
